NYPD CCRB Complaints | Opposing Side

Proposition: Force allegations are substantially less likely to be substantiated than other misconduct allegations.

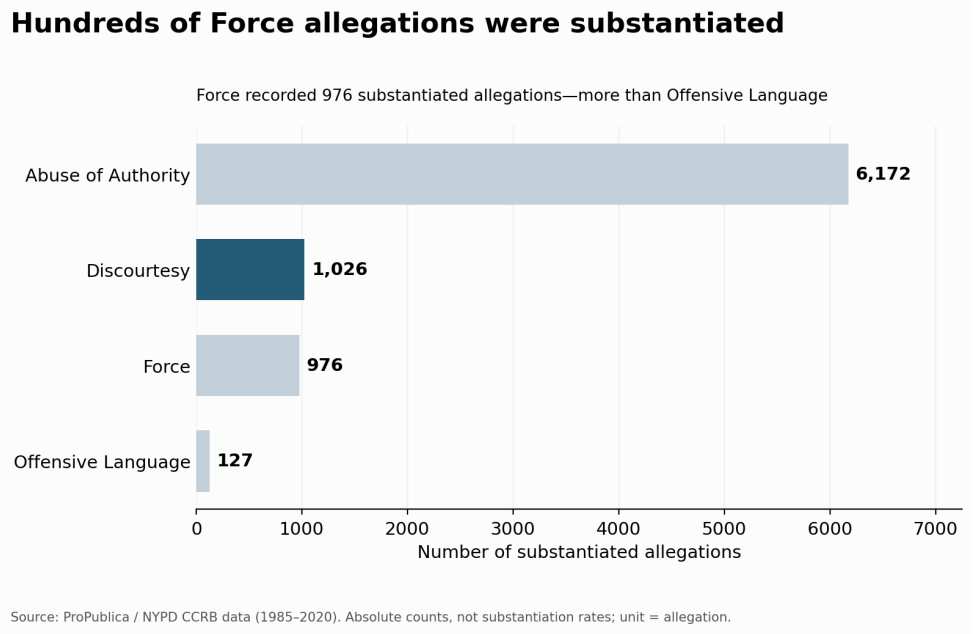

Figure 1: Selected outcomes

Excludes exonerated cases; Force (23.6%) slightly exceeds Discourtesy (23.1%) and Offensive Language (16.9%) among selected outcomes.

Figure 2: Absolute substantiated counts

Shows numbers of substantiated allegations rather than substantiation rates. Force: 976; Offensive Language: 127.

How these charts persuade

Figure 1: selective denominator (removing exonerated records) changes the comparison.

Figure 2: counts instead of rates shift attention toward the number of confirmed allegations.

Source: supplied CCRB complaint dataset (1985-2020). Unit of analysis: allegation, not unique complaint.